

Caverion Germany strengthens its capabilities in ventilation and cooling systems through an acquisition

Press release

27 May 2026 at 15:00 CEST

Caverion Germany has acquired Kees Klima- und Kältetechnik GmbH, a company focused on ventilation and cooling solutions in northwestern Germany. The company has approximately 40 employees. The total annual revenue in 2025 was EUR 6.1 million.

Kees is a well-established company specialised in ventilation, cooling, process, measurement and automation technology.

“Our growth focus includes, among other areas, cooling and climate technology. Kees is a strategic addition to our portfolio in this field. The company has a particularly valuable customer base, especially in the industrial sector,” says Manfred Simmet, CEO Germany, EVP.

“Kees has grown sustainably and profitably in recent years. With Caverion as our new owner, we are ideally positioned to continue this development,” says Ulf Nickel, who will remain as CEO of Kees together with Jörg Ruhländer.

Closing of the transaction is estimated to take place at the end of May 2026.
